From the Chairman's Desk:

Leadership

Two months ago I wrote about the significant changes in key leadership positions in our community and encouraged you to welcome these changes. Many of our new leaders are already playing significant roles in reshaping this community, the Corridor, for the better. Now I want to comment not on individual leaders, but leadership itself. Carlos Gutierrez, the former CEO/Chairman of the Board of Kellogg Company and the former Secretary of the US Department of Commerce, recently spoke at a Diversity Focus event. Secretary Gutierrez commented that “participation and inclusion doesn’t take the place of leadership.”

I believe the Cedar Rapids City Council’s recent process and decision to hire Jeff Pomeranz as our new City Manager reflects a strong sense of leadership. There are times when the “normal process” of public comment and reporting does not work well. That “normal process” would likely not have resulted in Jeff Pomeranz coming to Cedar Rapids, as qualified candidates often choose not to apply for such positions due to their existing jobs. Our City Council showed leadership in this hire, and I believe that leadership will pay dividends for all of us for years to come. Jeff is a recognized leader in this State. He will bring with him years of experience, a passion for job creation and a proven track record of success. Jeff understands how to work with and through our state and federal governments to find the most help, financial and otherwise, possible.

Throughout our area, our leaders, some relatively new to their positions, are leading us forward. The Chamber, through Shannon Meyer’s leadership, has made significant improvements in a number of Chamber programs, including the Leadership for Five Seasons programs and ImpactCR. Those programs are supporting the growth and development of community leaders and support and develop programming for young professionals. The Chamber’s renewed focus on providing information and assistance for our members to become engaged in international trade is paying dividends for many businesses increasing or entering into those markets.

We look forward to working with another new community leader, Jeff Pomeranz. The Chamber will continue to be a leader in many areas and is committed to working with everyone who needs to be at the table to accomplish the many exciting projects and initiatives in our future.

Sincerely,

Brad Hart
Chairman, Board of Directors

Building a Greater Community Forum Attracts Many

On June 2nd, ImpactCR partnered with the United Way of Eastern Iowa’s Young Leaders Society and Gazette Communications/KCRG-TV9 to present “Building a Greater Community” for the Next Generation forum. Hundreds attended the event held at CSPS/Legion Arts to learn about developments happening in our region such as the new event center, year-round city market and many more.

A panel discussion including Shannon Meyer, Chamber President and CEO; Cedar Rapids Mayor Ron Corbett; Linn County Supervisor, Brent Oleson; State Representative Tyler Olson and Chuck Peters, CEO of Gazette Communications.

As part of the “now and next generation” in the Cedar Rapids area, it is our responsibility to stand up and play a role in building a community that will meet the needs of future generations. As we rebuild from one of the largest natural disasters in U.S. history, we have many significant projects on the horizon that will shape the future of our region. “You don’t expect your bankers to be covered in mud from head to toe.

But mine were. Within hours of being allowed back into our building after the Cedar River flood, five employees from Cedar Rapids Bank & Trust were here to help us with clean-up and later, guide us through some tough financial decisions. Since then, our business has reopened - it’s service and friends like this that you never forget.”

Is your bank this good?

Iowa I 00 Extension Near

On June 8th 2010, the Iowa Department of Transportation Commission approved the five-year Transportation Improvement Program. Within the $2.3 billion five-year plan, the commission added $4.3 million dollars for right of way acquisition and wetlands mitigation in FY2012 and FY2013.

This is a significant step towards the completion of a vital artery for the Cedar Rapids Metro area which will alleviate I-380 congestion and create an efficient connection to the western and eastern parts of Linn County. The approved land acquisition funding and funds already allocated to the City positions Cedar Rapids to create a shovel-ready road project allowing for greater opportunity to access funding at the federal level for construction completion.

“The traffic on Interstate 380 will use the new Iowa 100 around the west side of Cedar Rapids thus extending the life of Interstate 380”

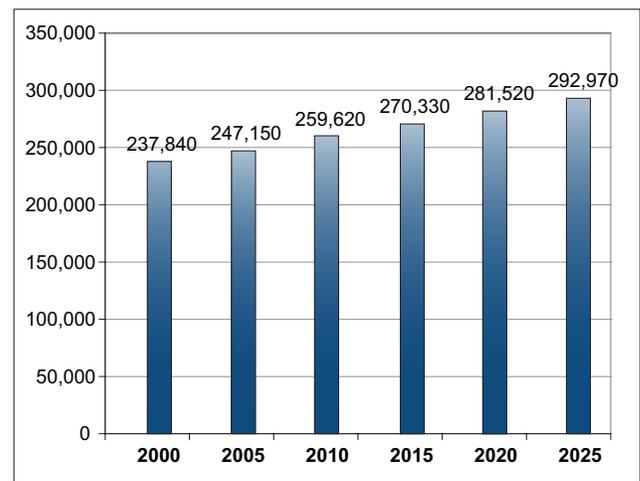

— Allen Witt
Past Chair of The Chamber

The Cedar Rapids Area Chamber of Commerce has been a strong advocate for the project along with the City of Cedar Rapids, Linn County, area Labor Unions and many other Community Leaders. The Chamber led the project by advocating for local representation on the Iowa Department of Transportation Commission, organizing awareness campaigns and lobbying at numerous DOT board meetings. It is one of the top issues among Chamber members.

The Corridor Metropolitan Planning Organization passed a resolution to fund project development with $2.95m slated for local projects and the federal government approved $1.45m for the project. Linn County supports the dedication of right-of-way that they control and the Linn County Conservation Board passed a resolution to support the project in 2006 not to mention 1,500 businesses and surrounding cities support the project’s completion.

As Linn County continues to experience strong economic and population our region needs to be prepared for the growth. A report from the Population and Economic Forecasts Technical Advisory Committee predicted a 10 percent population increase each decade through 2030 and job growth of 14 percent to 21 percent each decade. It’s essential that our community provides the necessary infrastructure to promote and support this type of growth.

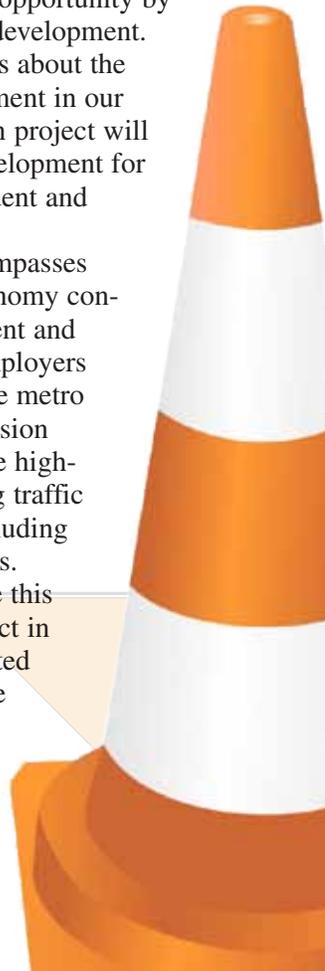

Projected Population Growth - Cedar Rapids MSA

The project also creates expansion opportunity by providing large green space for future development. “The Chamber often receives comments about the lack of new commercial/retail development in our community and the Iowa 100 Extension project will alleviate one of the barriers to new development for the area,” states Shannon Meyer, President and CEO of The Chamber.

The Cedar Rapids labor shed encompasses nearly 20 counties. As the region’s economy continues to grow and workforce recruitment and retention increases in intensity, area employers will need to reach much farther than the metro area. The design of the Iowa 100 Extension will provide limited access points to the highway, limiting congestion and improving traffic flow for a majority of Linn County including Hiawatha, Robins and NE Cedar Rapids.

“I applaud the effort to reinvigorate this important economic development project in support of the community’s future,” noted Dr. Dave Benson, Superintendent of the Cedar Rapids Community School District. “The school district looks forward to the growth opportunity that the Highway 100 extension can provide.”

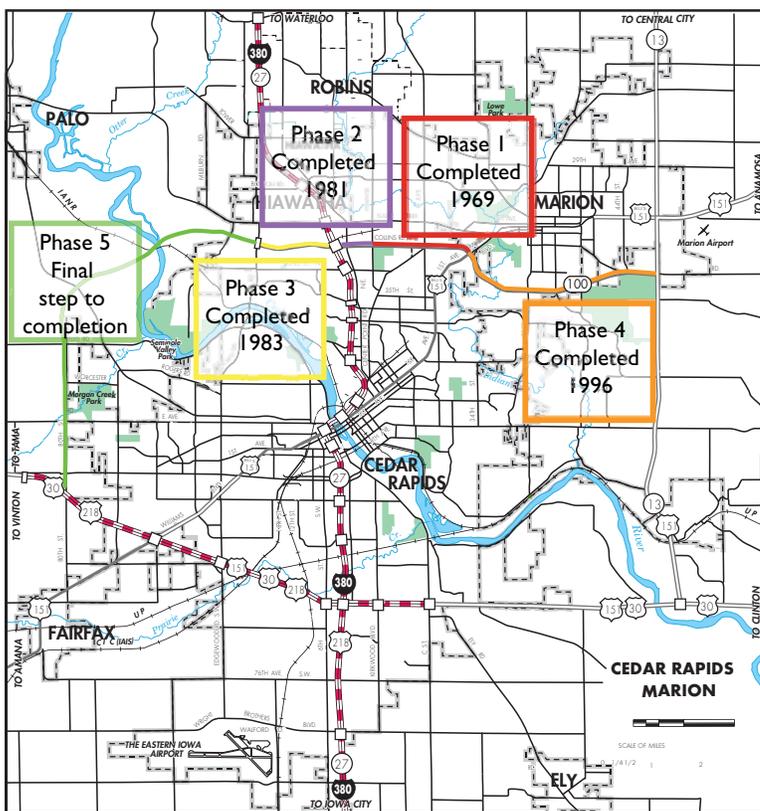

Spring Construction Start

The project received a Record of Decision from the Federal Highway Administration in June 2008. Environmental studies are now completed and with a federal transportation bill looming it was critical for the project to be included in this approved plan. The Cedar Rapids Area Chamber of Commerce would like to thank the Iowa Department of Transportation Commission for their understanding and thoughtfulness by including the Iowa 100 Extension in the states' five-year plan.

“Successfully growing communities plan and provide the essential infrastructure for growth and major roads and highways tend to be the most important factor. Cedar Rapids has not undertaken a new major road project for more than 20 years, as a result most residential, commercial and retail development is occurring outside of Cedar Rapids. The Iowa 100 Extension will adjust the region’s growth patterns allowing for attractive sites for retail, commercial and residential development within Cedar Rapids.”

— Kyle Skogman, President
Skogman Homes
Priority One Chair

The primary transportation benefits of the proposed Iowa 100 Extension include:

-  Reduce congestion and associated problems on the road network in the area adjacent to and beyond the proposed Iowa 100 Extension.
-  Provide an alternate route for through traffic in the event of major traffic stoppages on I-380 in the central part of Cedar Rapids or Edgewood Road or in the event of flooding.
-  Provide an efficient connection between the west side of Cedar Rapids and Linn County, the northeast side of Cedar Rapids and Linn County as well as, the Cities of Robins, Hiawatha and Marion.
-  Provide transportation improvements to accommodate planned growth and associated travel demand increases.

Chamber Launches New Web Site

In June, the Cedar Rapids Area Chamber of Commerce launched a completely new Web site yet the address remains www.cedarrapids.org. The Chamber has integrated the design of the new site with its member management software, WebLink International. The comprehensive site allows added features for members including the ability to register and pay on-line for events, manage their member directory and gain exposure through the new Search Engine Optimization Member directory. WebLink International specializes in chambers of commerce and tourism organizations. Their clients generate 92% more business referrals for their members versus other providers.

The site will also integrate information from ImpactCR and Leadership for Five Season. The consolidation of three sites into one will allow easier access to information for our members and community.

The Web site, www.cedarrapids.org receives more than 45,000 visits each month.

Interested in Winning $10,000?

The Chamber is once again offering someone with the opportunity to win $10,000*. The Chopper Dropper raffle returns for this year's golf outing on August 2nd.

500 numbered golf balls will be dropped from a helicopter onto the 18th fairway following The Chamber Golf Outing. The first ball in or closest to the cup will win $10,000.

Ticket price is only $50 and can be purchased at The Chamber office or at any Chamber event. For more information contact Jeff Schamberger at jschamberger@cedarrapids.org or 319.730.1402.

Estimated prizes based on all tickets sold. Need not be present to win.*

"We saw a great opportunity to make the purchase at a company level to reward the hard work of some of our top performers. Each manager was able to select one or two individuals and explained to them that their name would be submitted. Of course, after having the $10,000 winner last year, this has become a popular reward plus we felt obligated to get an additional packet so we could enter even more names. If AEGON has someone win again, I think we'll probably be buying them all next year."

ENTREPRENEURS' CORNER

High-Value Selling

By Curt Nelson, President & CEO of the Entrepreneurial Development Center

Different sales techniques, based upon the product or service and the prospective “user,” are required to maximize selling success. Selling commodity, easily-purchased products is significantly different than selling expensive, considered-purchase products. But in all cases, sales occur when the benefits received equals or exceeds the price required to obtain it – when “value” is created.

As the investment becomes more expensive, more technical, and more competitive;

- The higher in the organization the decision is likely to be made / approved
- The longer the sales cycle is likely to be
- The greater the value required to cause a purchase
- The larger the number of players involved is likely to be
- The more important it is to build relationships early in the process with the right people

Most high-value Request for Proposals (RFPs), for example, are awarded to the firm that built the relationship ahead of the RFP being generated – wisely ensuring that the RFP itself was written around their offering. Businesses that simply answer RFPs as their first contact with prospective buyers close a very small portion of what could be attained.

If your product or service requires value to be built over time, start early in the process, work at all the right levels, and help prospective users make quality investments. Don't wait for prospects to send you an RFP written around someone else's specifications. Don't make the assumption that the person that contacted you is the decision maker. Don't mistake continued communications as a sign that you are likely to get the sale. And don't assume that “presenting” your offering is “selling.”

Successful high-value sales people spend their professional life learning to build great relationships with the right people and the right value – at the right time – to win the greatest percent of deals. They know how to employ valued company resources and how to choreograph the use of those resources at the right times. If you need to build a great value to maximize sales, you need to build high-value selling teams – not just presentation teams.
